Resident remembers civil rights leader

By BOB DENYS
ANP Staff Writer

On that hot August day in 1963 when Martin Luther King Jr. stood before thousands of people in Washington D.C. and said, "I have a dream," Jaki Galloway of Romulus was there.

"My mother sent me. I rode the bus from New York to Washington. I was just a kid, but I'll never forget the experience. There was lot of energy and a lot of bonding. A warm feeling comes over me every time I hear that speech. It is forever etched in my memory," she said.

Galloway has grown up a little since then. She eventually moved from Queens where she was born and raised to Michigan. She earned a graduate degree in education and developmental psychology at Andrews University in Berrien Springs. She is now a working mother in Romulus with three children, Marcus, 7, Shennoa, 4 and Natalie, 1. Memories of that historic civil rights march in Washington have never escaped her.

"I appreciate what civil rights are. I realize that the freedoms I enjoy as a black woman in America were made possible by the suffering of others. I can walk into a restaurant and be served and I can sit on a bus. I want to give thanks to the people who made this possible," she said.

And she is fulfilling that pledge. Exactly one year ago, Galloway was watching a commemorative television program about the slain civil rights leader, Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.

"I wondered what could I do for his day? Then an idea flashed in my mind. I wrote it down and ran out of the house to a print shop. And that's when I composed this card," she said.

She pointed to her original greeting card with the front inscription "Don't Forget the

Down the drain County prisoners supply local labor

A recently negotiated agreement with Wayne County will provide for the cleaning of storm drains in the city of Romulus this year.

Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara has made cleaning the local drains a top priority for 1988, according to Mark Edmunds, manager of the Division of Administration Work Force in the Department of Public Services for the county.

To clean these drains, the county will utilize persons convicted of misdemeanors as laborers. This program is new to Wayne County and will provide workers in several Wayne County communities.

"Instead of sentencing a person to jail for committing a misdemeanor or non-violent crime, the court can direct individuals into the 'Alternative Community Workforce,'" said Edmunds. And many of these people have already found their way into the Romulus drain system, literally. Residents have noticed these individuals clad in striped orange vests working on the Trouton Drain in northeast Romulus. As many 100 people can be found cleaning debris from drains during weekends. About 50 workers are assigned during the week.

"The weekend program has skyrocketed. The program operates seven days a week wherever work needs to be done. Wayne County Sheriffs provide the security. Obviously, a lot is being accomplished," he noted.

The type of work varies in each community. "But it's usually dirty, grubby work. We make 'em pay for their crime. We're not running a day camp. If they don't show up, they land in jail," he said.

"Both the county executive and Mayor Beverly McAnally have been working to coordinate a drain program for the city. Wayne County Prosecutor John O'Hair was also instrumental in instituting the program. Romulus residents are long overdue to have their drains cleaned by Wayne County," Edmunds said.

So far, 1,500 people have completed their sentence through the 'Alternative Work Force.'

The cost per individual in the program is $30 a day, often paid by the misdemeanor. The cost to the county for a day in jail is $65, according to Edmunds.

Last year, McNamara met with all community officials to identify priorities.

Currently, the Alternative Work crew has cleaned three truck loads of debris out of the Trouton Drain. The drain will be cleaned from Van Born and the railroad tracks on the north to Wayne and Ecorse roads on the south. Work should be complete in two weeks. Crews will then proceed to the Halecreek Drain.

"It's been years since these drains have been cleaned. They've pulled out all kinds of junk from bikes to tires.

They've cut down three-inch trees. In the spring, they'll finish cleaning the bottom. This should make one heck of a difference," he noted.

"In the spring, those drains have got to be deep and clean. Water should flow more easily. There should be less flooding.

The county also benefits from jail space the program makes available. Contrary to

Wayne officials receive lawsuit

By TERRY JACOBY
ANP Staff Writer

Wayne officials received notice Thursday of a lawsuit filed seeking an injunction to prohibit the city from purchasing a 73-acre parcel of land, located on the corner of Van Born and Hannan roads, Romulus.

The land is to be used as a wetlands mitigation site to replace land displaced by a $340 million expansion project of the Ford Wayne Assembly Plant. The suit was filed by the city of Romulus.

Ford Motor Co. officials have announced plan to construct the stamping plant just south of the assembly plant, on Michigan Avenue. However, the site was found to contain 45 acres of wetlands. As a result of the state Wetlands Act of 1979, areas with wetland vegetation are protected under the law and cannot be developed unless a similar parcel is mitigated elsewhere.

Wayne officials have conducted a hydrogeologic study on the Romulus site, which showed the property was suitable for the mitigation.

The state Department of Natural Resources and Harold Meininger, owner of the property, are also named in the lawsuit.

"We have had no contact with the city of Wayne since the meeting we conducted in Romulus council chambers Nov. 4," said Romulus Mayor Beverly McAnally, who said the lawsuit was necessary.

Romulus City Attorney Barry Seifman said, "They have 21 days to respond. We're not trying to stop development. We just don't want our own city property underdeveloped."

Wayne City Attorney John McKinney said the city of Wayne has done illegal and has acted in the rights of any municipality.

"There is nothing in the lawsuit that would point out that we have done anything outside of our authority," said McKinney. "It's not the style for the city of Wayne to do anything dishonest or illegal."

McKinney said there are several parts to the lawsuit, including the purchase of property outside its boundaries being beyond the scope of the authority of the city. "It also charges the DNR has acted improperly in granting the city of Wayne with a permit, and by allowing the mitigation, they have treated the two unequally."

— John McKinney

ity of the city.

"There are three documents you look at when deciding the rights of a city," said McKinney. "The Michigan Constitution, the Home Rule Act and the city's charter all allow the city of Wayne to purchase property outside its boundaries."

McKinney pointed out that the city of Dearborn owns property outside of its boundaries (Dearborn, located in Milford, and a senior citizens condominium in Florida).

"The city of Detroit also owns property outside its boundaries," McKinney said. "I wouldn't say it's a common occurrence, but it is certainly not unusual for this to happen."

The lawsuit also charges Wayne with not following certain procedures in regard to notifying Romulus officials of the pending land sale.

"It also charges the DNR has acted improperly in granting the city of Wayne with a permit, and by allowing the mitigation, they have treated the two unequally," said McKinney.

"I don't think any of their theories have any basis in the law."

McKinney and the city of Wayne have 21 days to respond to the suit. Romulus has not asked for a temporary restraining order in the purchase of the property.

Hospital project now completed

Yesterday marked the completion of the final phase of a $2.5 million reconfiguration project at the Beyer Memorial Hospital, Ypsilanti. An open house was staged to showcase the new ambulatory surgery holding area at the hospital.

Ambulatory - or outpatient - surgery means a one-day surgery. The new Beyer ambulatory surgical holding area will be used for patients to remain after surgery and during recovery from anesthesia.

In addition to the holding area, the reconfiguration project at Beyer includes the redesign of the obstetrics, pediatrics and intensive care units, creation of an intermediate-care unit, remodeling of the emergency room waiting area and remodeling of the hospital front lobby.

Financial aid program topic

A special statewide video presentation with information about student financial aid will be featured at 54 colleges and universities - and eight local institutions - at 7:15 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 21.

Presented by the Michigan Department of Education Student Financial Services office, the program is titled "Student Financial Aid: Putting It to Work for You."

Pre-registration is required at each site, although there is no charge for the 52-minute program.

Locally, the video will be shown at (phone numbers included): Eastern Michigan University, 487-0208; Henry Ford Community College, 845-9616; Madonna College, 591-5036; Schoolcraft College, 591-6400; University of Michigan, 763-4119; Washtenaw Community College, 973-3523; Wayne County Community College, 496-2595; and Wayne State University, 577-4971.

Study approves site for local wetlands

By TERRY JACOBY
ANP Staff Writer

Representatives from a consulting firm have confirmed that the site Wayne officials plan to use to replace several acres of wetlands for the Ford Motor Co. expansion project are suitable as a mitigation site, city officials reported last week.

CTI and Associates Inc. workers have conducted a hydrogeologic study on the 45 acres at Van Born and Hannan roads in Romulus. The study revealed that the land is suitable for the implementation of "manmade" wetlands, wetlands that were once located and later displaced south of the Wayne Assembly Plant when Ford officials began construction of a $340 million stamping plant there.

Under state law, areas designated as wetlands, such as the Ford site, cannot be developed without a waiver from the state Department of Natural Resources. To obtain the waiver, city officials had to find an amount of land equal in size to the displaced land and in close proximity. They also must develop the new site as a "manmade" wetland.

By definition, wetlands are the bogs, swamps and marshes in the state preserved to support plant and aquatic life.

In the report, CTI officials said the elevation of the water surface is so uniform that the water is practically stagnant and is not flowing. This is an ideal condition for wetland mitigation, they said.

"Our evaluation of the subsoil and groundwater conditions at the site indicate that the proposed site is suitable for wetland mitigation," the report stated.

John Zech, Wayne assistant city manager, said the study will now be sent to the DNR for approval.

"The DNR will look over the study and see if they will allow the property to be used for the mitigation," said Zech. "I think they have all the information they will need, and I believe that they will approve the site."

Zech said DNR officials previously had concerns about the landfill located across from the site.

"They were concerned that the wetlands could be adversely affected by the landfill," said Zech. "But the study showed that the landfill is not affecting the site."

Wayne officials also hope to complete the purchase of the Romulus property from a private citizen. Romulus city officials, however, have filed suit against the city of Wayne, hoping to halt the sale on the grounds that the conversion of the land into a wetland would eliminate the possibility of the land being developed in the future.

As a wetland owned by the city of Wayne, the Romulus land would not be subject to taxes, as it currently is under ownership by a private citizen.

Despite the lawsuit, Zech is optimistic that the sale will be finalized.

"We have to see what the

The proposed wetland site in Romulus is located at the southeast corner of Van Born and Hannan roads. ANP photo by Bob Denys lawsuit states and what bearing it will have on the property," Zech said. "After that is resolved, the city council will have to decide if they are going to buy the property."

Zech said city officials have until March 1 to decide if they will buy the property.

"We have optioned the property with the owner, which means if we want to buy it, he has to sell it to us. The option was extended to March 1 because we needed more time to see if we could use the land for the mitigation."

The price of the Romulus land has not been disclosed.

Way It was and a sign that reads Whites Only. Inside the same sign says Love Only, Let the Dream Live On!, Remember Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. Day. The card was complete two days after his anniversary. No one ever saw the card, she said.

Now one year and 14 cards later, Galloway is in the greeting card business. She calls her work the "Black Family Collection." Locally, they are sold at the Shrine of the Black Madonna in downtown Detroit. One business woman sent several boxes to her stores in Houston and Atlanta.

"I give thanks to God for the inspiration. He's been my partner in this project," she added.

Galloway is very thankful. Her cards focus on the family values and black unity. She frequently uses such words as strength and tradition. On her Mother's Day card, she asked where would the black family be without you?

"Let's help young people remember. This year I sent cards to Atlanta Mayor Andrew Young and Coretta Scott King. I didn't sign my name, I just wanted them to know I appreciate what they've done. And I thank U.S. Rep. John Conyers for his part in establishing Jan. 18 as a national holiday," she said.

Galloway's business called Jaki Productions, helps fulfill one other goal, "to work at home and be with my children."

"After many years of teaching, I wanted to be home with my children, but I wanted to work. This is the best of both worlds. And I'm going to put my best foot forward. There is a need and a market for cards about the black family with positive images. I want to uphold the traditions of a strong black family," Galloway said.

Galloway's own family possesses the tradition and strength her cards promote. Her mother recites a thorough oral family history going back three and four generations to a Virginia plantation. Her mother's mother was the first in the family to be born free.

"Black history is for everyone. My personal heritage is that of strong God fearing people typical of many other cultures. A strong family is important to get back to the basics of trust and togetherness. I owe something to somebody. This is my way of doing it. And we all owe something to our family," Galloway concluded.

Students plan participation for 1988

Student participation is the latest trend at Romulus High School in 1988, according to Mike Birmingham, leadership class advisor.

"Students are getting involved. They've organized several activities for the current school year. From guest speakers to dances, students want to become a part of their school and community," he said.

On Jan. 25, students will attend the Board of Education meeting to discuss Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome. They will present board members with an AIDS program which they would like endorsed. No program currently exists for the dissemination of information about AIDS in the school district, according to Birmingham.

"Health class touches on AIDS but as far as school-wide education, we don't have it. Students would like the go ahead to bring in speakers and show films. They want to be educated and prepared for the day when someone they know might contract AIDS. They don't want to overreact. But they want to be ready," said Birmingham.

Leadership students are getting spring fever. In an effort to beat the winter blahs, they have directed their attention toward the annual Spring Festival on March 11 through 18.

"It's a high point of the semester," he noted.

Attendance at school dances has slacked off recently as many students are bored with the old disc jockey format, according to Birmingham. He expects this to change once students learn what's happening with the upcoming Valentine's Day Dance, Feb. 12, in the school gym.

"They're going to liven this dance up a bit with a new disc jockey and video show. You have to give students something for their money. We expect a big turnout," he said.

Mr. and Mrs. Schmidt will return with their "Virgin Drink Bar" which was so successful at the Homecoming Dance. They make all the standard drinks without alcohol. The drinks look and taste like the real McCoy. That night, the line at the bar never ended. Students were still waiting for drinks when the last song finished, Birmingham noted.

Students are already committed to May 6 as the date of their Prom at the Roostertail Nightclub in Detroit. And for the second year now, organizers are planning a junior prom.

Destination for the senior class trip this year is Mexico. Students will board a cruise ship in Florida. They are already planning and saving money, Birmingham said.

Romulus High School hopes to ease the transition of incoming freshman this year with a major school orientation.

"We've sent a crew of people to the Junior High School to explain to students exactly what goes on over here. This should kind of take the sting out of the unknown. Each high school department will make a presentation. This will be a major effort."

Mike Birmingham

"Students have decided their world is more than just inside the high school building. Some students are making regular trips to the Senior Towers in Romulus. They have adopted a foster child and pay for their support each month. The big thing in the high school is community awareness," he concluded.

New program offers adults a healthy beginning

By BOB DENYS
ANP Staff Writer

A job awaits all students who successfully complete a new course in the Romulus Adult Education Program.

"That's our goal," said Ed Clark, coordinator for the new program called, "Home Health Care Aide/Direct Care Worker."

"We want to be sure that the people completing this course are employable with all the necessary skills. And we want them to be not only attractive to a potential employer but have a competitive edge," he added.

The first group to complete the program will graduate Feb. 5. The next semester begins Feb. 5 in the Adult Education Building, 11401 Olive St. in Romulus. By all accounts, the program is a success.

"Basically, students will receive a flexible certificate which will allow them to work in a wide variety of health care facilities, whether this be a nursing home or group home," said Clark.

Each student receives approximately 300 hours of training during the 17-week program. They could also earn up to seven-and-a-half credits toward their high school degree.

"It's a tough program, we're not training not just to train. The program is unique because we expose students to as many areas in the health field as possible including social work and mental health. Not all students can endure the pressure," he said.

Teachers conducted field trips to Eastern Michigan University where students toured the campus and spoke with college representatives. Students were told how to further their career after the course.

"Students had the opportunity to visit several health care facilities. We had speakers give students first-hand information about the medical profession. It's a complete education as opposed to simple training. Students develop good employment skills at the same time they're developing a good attitude," explained Clark, who added the program emphasizes student confidence and self-esteem.

The program is sponsored and funded by the Downriver Community Conference. Any Romulus residents 18 and older who hasn't completed high school is eligible.

"There's a great need for direct care workers. As the majority of our population gets older, health care needs increase. Several group homes in the city have called to say they need people right away. We have to tell them to wait until students graduate," he said.

The program is approved and certified by the Wayne County Mental Health Department, Clark added.

"Students are trained for entry level positions. They have a strong nurses aide and medical background. They'll be able to take off from here. The program opens many employment doors for the future," Clark said.

Registration for the Health Care program is now being conducted from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Monday through Friday at the Adult Education Building, 11401 Olive St. in Romulus. More information is available at 941-0610.

Lawmakers eye change in tax law

By RAY DAY
ANP Managing Editor

The taxing of children on the money they earn mowing lawns, delivering newspapers and babysitting is absurd, local lawmakers agree. The same lawmakers said they hope to find a remedy for the situation when returning to the state capital today, after their Christmas recess.

Calling the issue a misunderstanding, state Rep. Gerald Law (R-Plymouth) said the recent media attention to the taxation of youngsters has been overplayed. The issue, he explained, is the result of changes in federal tax laws and cannot be tied directly to any action taken at the state level.

LAW: 'A misunderstanding'

"Nobody at the state level has done anything to alter the (state) tax laws. In the past, if you didn't have to file a federal return, you didn't file a state return," Law said.

New federal regulations no longer allows a personal exemption for anyone claimed as a dependent on someone else's return. That change means many teens and part-time job holders will complete their first tax form this year, since all of their wages are taxable.

However, federal guidelines also indicate that anyone who has earned less than $2,540 in wages and not more than $1 in interest income or less than $500 in wages but more than $1 in interest need not file a federal tax return.

State tax laws mimic the federal regulations regarding personal exemptions, but they do not contain non-filing provisions for low-wage earners, Law explained. Thus, youngsters in the state, who receive no personal exemption since their parents will claim them as dependents, are now subject to the 4.6 percent state tax on all 1987 earnings.

State Sen. George Hart (D-Dearborn) said the taxation of children was not the intention of lawmakers at either the federal or state level. Tax reforms, Hart said, were meant to target college students making a substantial amount of money while living at home and also parents who attempt to avoid higher taxes by funneling monies into children's savings accounts and trust funds.

Hart believes changes in the state law are necessary.

"This is ridiculous. If (the state lawmakers) recognize an inequity, they will correct it. They have done it before.

"We have always corrected any inequity," he continued.

State Sen. William Faust (D-Westland) agreed.

"Obviously, I think there has been a mistake because of the cross-filing of federal returns and state returns," Faust said. "I don't think anyone intended that there would be taxation of young people. It would be a tragedy to ever attempt to do that."

Two proposals were suggested to correct the taxation problem. Under a plan suggested by Rep. Shirley Johnson (R-Royal Oak), youngsters would be excused from tax-filing duties if they are 17 or younger and earn less than $1,500.

Sen. John Kelly (D-Detroit) suggested that the age be reduced to 14 and income level increased to $2,540.

'For sale' 1988 viewed as buyer's market

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

If you're planning to purchase a house soon, 1988 is your year.

That's the message from local and area real estate people who agree that "1988 is a buyer's market." Despite the Oct. 19, 1987, stock market crash and the recent layoffs by the "Big Three" automobile manufacturers, area brokers remain optimistic about home sales during the next 12 months.

"Consumer demand for housing has been and remains strong in western Wayne County," said Dottie LeSuer, of the Westland-based Earl Keim Realty office. "The chemistry is there for a good market because of the low interest and what I believe will be a stable rate for the year."

According to the Western Wayne Oakland County Board of Realtors, there were 170 sales of homes in Westland, with the average home selling for $53,439. There were 1,407 listings in the city.

"Because this is an election (presidential) year," LeSuer continued, "one doesn't anticipate a wide swing in the interest rates. Therefore, I would have to believe the market for homes will be there."

However, LeSuer cautioned, because of a lack of listings, home buyers will not have a wide range from which to select.

"It won't be like that record summer of 1986 when everyone appeared to want to sell, and everyone wanted to buy. That was a perfect marriage," she said.

Willie C. Williams, of Will Cooperate, Inc., a Realtor in Inkster, concurred with LeSuer's analysis. He, too, is optimistic because of what national and local prognosticators are predicting about home sales.

"The interest rates are where homes can be affordable for first-time home buyers," Williams said. "In fact, I believe they may come down a bit during the year because of the economy. And, despite those layoffs by the auto companies, I believe there are enough buyers out there to keep the momentum going."

The next few months may be the best time to purchase a home, according to Marjory R. Pickett, president of the Metro Multiple Listing Service.

"Early in the year could be the best time for buyers to enter the market," she said. "The supply of homes in most areas will be adequate to meet the demands, but no improvement is expected in the pace of listings, now at the lowest level in the 1980s."

Inventory is low everywhere, Realtors say.

"Good homes are harder to come by," said Jean Chudzinski, of Century 21, Belleville, "but people are looking. There is a definite interest, and it is a buyer's market."

"And I don't believe that the stock market or the economy is going to stop a potential home buyer," Chudzinski continued, "because usually they aren't the people who invest money in stocks. People who can't afford to play the market (stock), usually don't."

"When it comes to home sales in our area, I am looking for a good year," she added.

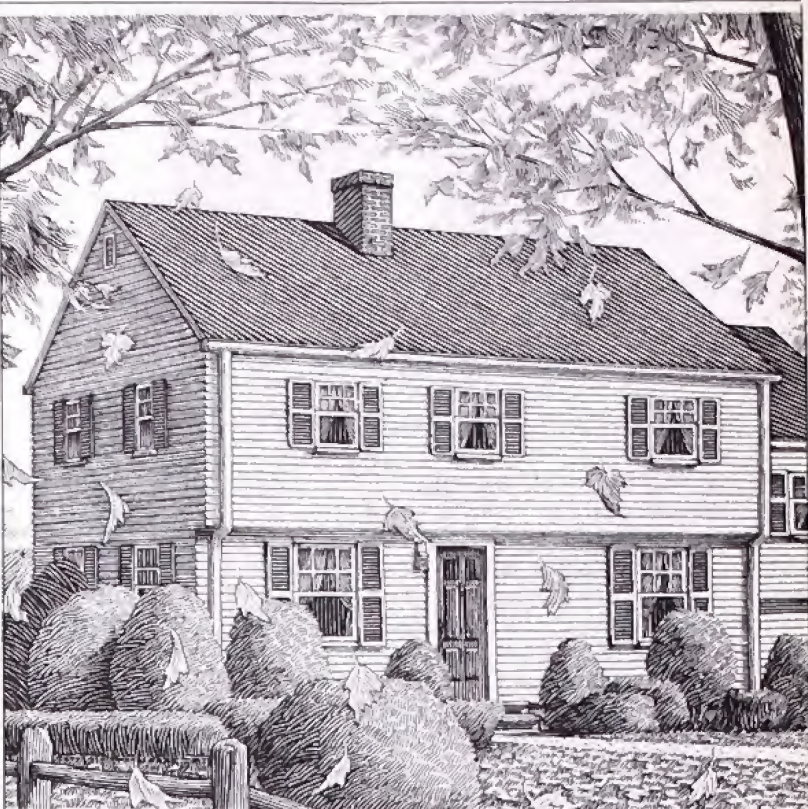

Wayne's L. Paul Newcomer, an independent, projects a "stable market when it comes to selling and buying homes in the city."

"Ford is constructing a multi-million plant here, and you're going to need homes to house these workers," Newcomer stressed. "And there are always transfers and relocations. I am not being idealistic but realistic when I say that business should be good this year."

All of the area Realtors agreed that home ownership remains attractive for many reasons. Most noted that both mortgage, interest and property taxes remain as federal, state and local deductions that cut ownership costs and make home ownership attractive.

And rising home values throughout most of western Wayne County during the next couple of years will provide a hedge against inflation, which some economists predict will increase 4.2 percent locally next year and 5.5 percent in 1990.

"We just can't list enough (homes)," said Ryan Jung, of Canton Realty. "The demand is there, and I can't see anything in the nearest future preventing another good year."

Facts about houses

Local Realtors agree that the area housing scene will be on the side of the buyer during 1988. With favorable interest rates and an optimistic view of the economy, this is an ideal year for first-time buyers and those homeowners eyeing a move, experts say.

Below we have outlined the average home prices and values during 1987.

McNamara details solvency plan

By JOAN MARY DYER
Belleville City Editor

When Edward McNamara took office as the first Wayne County executive, he expected to find a deficit. However, he did not anticipate that the county was more than $25 million "in the hole" than had been projected.

McNamara reported to the 17-member Conference of Western Wayne that reduction of the deficit has been one of his prime focuses since taking office. First, he said, was the elimination of some departments and areas, the banning of all out-state travel by county employees and a freeze on employment.

Suspect bound for trial in shooting

A 38-year-old Westland man charged in the Jan. 3 shooting death of 37-year-old Curnel R. Austin, of Inkster, has been bound over to the Wayne County Circuit Court, following a preliminary examination Jan. 11.

Bonnie Lamar Jones remains in custody at the Wayne County jail, pending a pre-trial date in the circuit court. Jones was bound over on charges of second-degree murder by Westland 18th District Court Judge Gail McKnight.

If you need help contact AMERICAN LUNG ASSOCIATION

Reductions and belt-tightening were not enough to balance the county budget, McNamara told the CWW representatives. However, when additional sources of revenue were investigated, the county executive found many of them were "already tied up." For example, even though there currently is not a tax on lottery ticket winnings, in the event that one is adopted it would be earmarked for education. County officials finally decided on an increase in the cigarette tax and airport parking fees.

McNamara told the CWW members that indigent health care has been a major burden for the county. Wayne county provides 90 percent of the indigent health care in the state, and the remaining 10 percent is provided in the remaining 83 counties, he said.

The county executive said there is a constant need to seek new sources of revenue "just to stay even." Wage hikes and arbitration awards increase county expenses, he said. In addition, normal hikes in the prices of goods and services add to increased costs for the county.

Conference selects officers for year

Four top officials of the 17-member Conference of Western Wayne were unanimously elected at the Jan. 8 meeting. The officers include CWW Chairman Charles Griffin, mayor of Westland; Vice Chairman Lynn Hamilton, supervisor of Van Buren Township; Secretary Lyle Van Houten of Dearborn Heights, and Treasurer Beverly McNally, mayor of Romulus.

The CWW meets on the second Friday of each month in the municipal building of one of the member communities.

Merriman widening to net corridor

The widening of Merriman Road to five lanes from Joy Road to Metro Airport may result in another "golden corridor" of economic development, according to Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara.

McNamara said federal funds are being sought for the project. If the funds are received, the widening of the major thoroughfare could be completed by 1991, McNamara told the members of the Conference of Western Wayne at the Jan. 8 meeting.

Joseph Benyo, of Westland, a member of the Eloise Development Task Force, said he was pleased to hear that the county is seeking funds for the project, which the task force and the Westland Economic Development Commission has been requesting for a long time. Benyo said the widening of Merriman Road is a key to the economic growth and development of the area, particularly the former Eloise property.

"When the road is widened," Benyo said, "there won't be any vacant property left. I believe that not only the Eloise property, but the vacant property in Inkster and throughout the area will be snapped up - not by speculators - but by developers who will bring about the growth and expansion of the area."

In addition, Benyo said, the development of new businesses will encourage the improvement and upgrading of the adjacent areas which have already been developed.

Wayne County owns 270 acres of surplus land at the Michigan Avenue site of the former medical center and mental care facility, which it has sought to sell for a combination of residential, industrial and commercial uses.

Legality of special tax reviewed

If local communities continue to establish tax increment financing districts, the legality of the TIFA districts may be challenged in court suits, according to Wayne County Executive Ed McNamara.

The county chief executive reported that TIFA districts in the western part of the state are being challenged by local school districts.

In his remarks to members of the Conference of Western Wayne Jan. 8, McNamara noted that the county is losing $4 million a year in revenues - half from TIFAs established in the city of Detroit. McNamara said most of the projects in the downtown area of Detroit were financed through TIFAs, which capture the increased tax dollars for use within the districts rather than to the county and other local taxing entities.

McNamara said he did not foresee any changes in the status of current TIFA districts. In the event that changes are made in the future, McNamara said, he hopes current TIFAs will be "grandfathered."

Expansions eyed at area airports

Expansion plans may be on the horizon for Willow Run Airport, as well as Metro Airport.

In a report to the 17-member Conference of Western Wayne Jan. 8, Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara predicted expansion of cargo and executive-type air traffic at the airport which is partially located in Van Buren Township.

McNamara reported that interest in the Willow Run facility has been expressed by Tom Monaghan, owner of Domino's Pizza, and Heinz Prechter, owner of several downriver businesses. The county executive noted that interest by the two major entrepreneurs could spark interest by other people in the business community.

Although no concrete plans are in the works, McNamara said he "sees expansion in the future." The chief county executive said the facility needs to expand to the north - a 200-acre site owned by General Motors Corp.

Incinerator: 5 years later, furnaces are fired

By RAY DAY
ANP Managing Editor

Workers at the Central Wayne County Sanitation Authority, in Dearborn Heights, will be "fired up" next month. But not because they are angry with their employer.

The workers will be firing up two 250-ton trash-burning furnaces at the CWCSA incineration complex, located on Inkster Road, after a five-year shutdown of the facility. The reopening of the furnaces in mid-February is the result of a $12 million renovation project of the plant. It is also marks the end of burying solid wastes in landfills for residents of the five CWCSA member communities - including Wayne, Westland, Inkster, Garden City and Dearborn Heights.

Ulrich C. Bauser, executive director of the Authority, said the advantage of burning garbage rather than burying it is primarily in the fact that burning is "more final" and does not require the continuous supply of vacant land landfills do.

Wayne County officials for several months been addressing a landfill problem in Wayne County, a problem they say will escalate sharply by the year 2000. It is in that same year county officials hope to be almost completely non-reliant on landfills.

"If you buy an acre of land and use it as a landfill, eventually you will fill it up and have to buy another landfill," Bauser said. "(Burning garbage) means less use of land space. And you can keep burning as low as you maintain (the incinerator furnaces)."

The three furnaces at the CWCSA complex were ordered shut down Dec. 31, 1982, by federal Environmental Protection Agency officials. The furnaces, the feds said, failed to meet national clean-air standards.

Since the shutdown, the facility has been used as a transfer site for the about 470 tons of garbage generated each day by the five member communities. Garbage trucks in the five cities would deposit refuse at the site. The wastes were then com-packed and hauled via trucks to a landfill in Canton Township or Washtenaw County.

However, in 1985, voters in the five member communities approved an up-to 1-mill, 15-year tax hike to fund a renovation of the air pollution control devices for two of the three furnaces at the Authority. Because of a few delays, the project is just shy of the Jan. 4 start-up date Bauser had set as a target.

"It was a long, hard struggle. But I think it was well worth the effort," Bauser said, commenting on the campaign to garner voter support for the project. "This provides a permanent solution to the waste problems of the five communities."

With a current start-up date set for Feb. 15, the two furnaces - complete with a newly installed smoke stack and air-cleaning electrostatic precipitators, which draw unburned particles into metal plates rather than releasing them into the air - will burn around the clock, seven days per week, Bauser said. Currently, the site is operated 16 hours per day, five days per week.

Because of the extended hours, 15 new employees will be added to the payroll, Bauser said. Funding for the additions to the payroll will be provided by the savings Authority officials will realize when they no longer must rely on costly landfill gate charges.

In all, however, the cost of burning wastes or burying them is about the same - about $18 per ton, Bauser said.

Constructed in 1964 for the five communities at a cost of $31 million, the CWCSA incinerators have undergone one other major remodeling. In 1970, voters approved a $3.1 million millage issue which funded the addition of a third, 500-ton-capacity furnace (which will not currently be needed because of low garbage volume) and facilities for the building to act as a transfer site.

It was in 1970 that the furnaces burned a peak amount of refuse - about 1,300 tons per day - and served the five member communities in addition to the cities of Taylor and Allen Park.

The Authority is one of three operating garbage-burning facilities in southeastern Michigan. A fourth plant - different in design from its three predecessors which use mass burning as opposed to a new selective-burning process - is expected to go on line in the city of Detroit in 1989.

In the CWCSA operation, garbage is transferred by a crane from a storage area at the plant into one of the 1700-degree furnaces. The refuse travels along tiered conveyor belt until it reaches an ash discharge area. The remaining ashes represent one-tenth of the original garbage in volume, Bauser said.

The ashes produced in the process are taken to a Huron Township landfill owned by the CWCSA. Only incinerator ashes can be dumped at the site, Bauser said.

About one-half of the ashes are metals and are magnetically removed and returned to a manufacturer. The remaining ashes are buried.

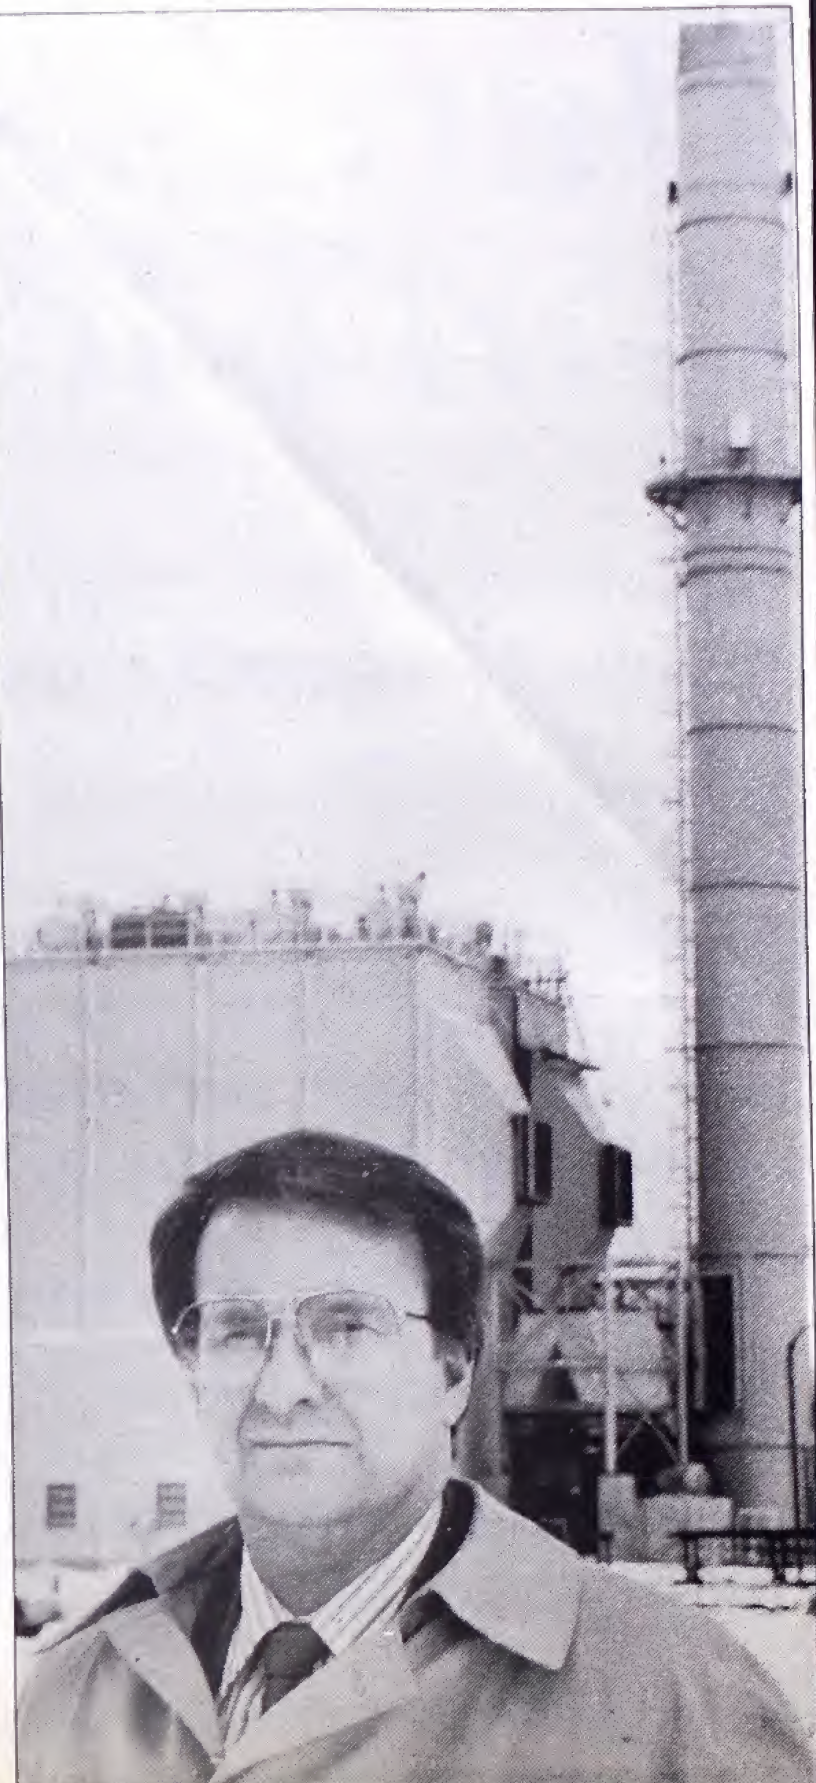

The gases resulting from the burning process travel into an enclosed chamber and, eventually, into the electrostatic precipitator. After the gases are cleared of hazardous air pollutants, they are released into the facility smokestack.

In a second phase of the renovation project, Bauser said, the gases and steam will be harnessed and used to produce electricity. The electricity can then be sold, and monies obtained can be used to fund the CWCSA operation.

A similar plan has been set for the new Detroit facility.

However, Bauser said, turning garbage into electricity might be several years down the road. First, he said, additional equipment must be installed on the furnaces at a cost of about $45 million.

A more immediate and affordable plan, he continued, is to interest other communities in joining the sanitation authority and edging closer to the county goal of not relying on landfills. If enough community officials express an interest in joining the CWCSA, Bauser said, plans to install new air-cleaning devices on the third, unused furnace could begin.

Ulrich Bauser has been working at the Central Wayne County Sanitation Authority incinerator plant since it was first opened in 1964. Behind him are the new smokestack and building which contains new air-pollution control devices. ANP photo by Ann Grimes/staff photographer

ASTHMA TREATMENTS—FROM CHICKEN SOUP TO IMMUNOTHERAPY

By James G. Fordyce, M.D.

The first successful treatment for asthma was discovered by a physician in the 12th century. His remedy was "the soup of fat hens." That's right - good old chicken soup. This cure has been utilized by mothers and grandmothers for all their families' breathing problems since that time.

However, newer remedies, as well as our understanding of asthma, have grown tremendously in the last 20 years.

WHAT IS ASTHMA?

Asthma is a disease of the breathing passages. The term asthma comes from the Greek word meaning to "pant" or "gasp." The symptoms include coughing, shortness of breath, and wheezing. They are produced by an increased production of mucus in the airway, swelling of the lining of the airway, and tightening of small muscles found in the wall of these airways. All of these factors make moving air in and out of the lung more difficult, so that a person breathes more rapidly and has to "push" the air out of the lungs.

The severity and frequency of these symptoms can vary greatly. Some patients experience only mild coughing, while others may require emergency treatment. If left unchecked, severe asthma may result in death.

We know that about 10 million people in the United States have asthma, and that in 1987 about 4,000 deaths will be caused by it. The number of these deaths has been increasing over the last decade. It has happened worldwide, and medical experts are unable to explain the increase.

Asthma is the primary cause of school days missed by children. An allergy background can be found in more than 50 percent of persons with asthma.

WHAT CAN BE DONE?

Fortunately, there are diagnostic techniques to detect the cause of asthma, and develop treatments to control its effects.

In next week's article, I will discuss these techniques and treatments.

ARIES - Early in January, you'll want to make a final decision about what your priorities are and what you need to make a commitment to in order to make things happen. If opportunity is knocking, this is not the time to play "nobody's home" because it may not come back.

Your career is ready for big changes. Are you ready? By the end of January, wherever you are, you'll have chosen a definite course, one way or another. Act as early in the month as you can.

TAURUS - You may be making some endings, saying good-bye in some way. Things are changing, and life may seem way up in the air. But don't be fearful. You're changing the people around you who have an effect on you. You are sick of being brought down by other's influence, and you're finally going to do something about it.

Education is very important, and you're changing your whole philosophy on life. Don't take chances on money. Be very thrifty.

GEMINI - You may be ready to walk away from a situation this month. You've got other choices, and you don't have to accept just anything. But make sure you've given your very best try before you walk away, or you'll never know if you did the right thing or not.

Impulsiveness will diminish your self-confidence. Your ability to stand on your own two feet will be your strength, so avoid dependency on all levels.

CANCER - You are closing a door on an old area of the past that had become a blockage. You may let go of an old hurt and realize how you're missing out on some very important joys in life, all by fear of being hurt and, as a result, causing your own pain. As you release it and the joy floods into your life, it fills in the part of your life that's been missing!

A whole new life opens up to you, and you're with it 100 percent, without reservations. All you need to give up is self-destructive influences and blockages in the form of people.

LEO - Letting go of an inner fear (and a major obstacle in your life) will lighten up your situation more than you can believe! You crave closeness and affection right now, and if you can have adventure, too, even better! But don't do something you know isn't right. If you've got to hide anything, stop justifying it, and knock it off before you hurt others and yourself in the process.

If your can be 100 percent in the open, you're right on track! If not, you're setting yourself up again. Ninety-nine percent means: "I want problems."

VIRGO - As one door closes, another one opens, and it will work out for you so much better than you may be thinking right now. Remember, the universe puts us right where we're supposed to be, (even if we think we're doomed). That "old stuff" you're ending in your heart is what has caused the majority of your hurt during the last few years.

Yes, the old dream dies, but reality is so much superior to that. You'll soon be grateful to finally be set free!

LIBRA - End a career phase and image others have had of you. It's a chance to be seen in some new way, not being held as the "old" you, in anyone's mind. You "create" the new you as though it has always been there. This is a fantastic opportunity not many people have. Don't waste it. Next month will be too late.

SCORPIO - If there are problems with an old or ending relationship or employment situation, do not allow legal entanglements to form. Let them win, but get out of it - once and for all. If you stay out of principle, you'll create a long, drawn-out problem that will hurt your popularity and even your future goals.

You won't win power struggles without hurting yourself in the process. So don't struggle. Escape. By the end of this month, everything cuts loose!

SAGITTARIUS - As you release an old obligation, you free yourself of what your financial resources are and what is available to you. By the end of the month, you kick into high gear, and activity is continuous. Watch your temper and attitude. Avoid being testy or hateful.

You may have a new source of income opening up. Be open to that. It could be a very long-lasting situation.

CAPRICORN - You're releasing a stubborn attitude concerning relationships with others, and the benefits may surprise you! Don't allow unspoken fears to restrict you. It's not a premonition of "doom" you're sensing, it's only change.

You'll find that that change on the way is great, and you're more stabilized and more creative as a result. Once you get what you've asked for, don't refuse it, and don't be afraid of it.

AQUARIUS - You're taking a good, hard look at your work, your schedule and how you feel about it. Ambition is running high and so is confidence. This is an excellent time to seek out an employment opportunity. If you take the ceiling off your dreams, you'll find you're capable of a lot more than you've been reaching for, and you grow as a result of that realization.

PISCES - You've done everything you could. Now, if it still isn't working, let it go forever. Get on with your life. Once you cut the bonding, everything calms down, and only your own growth will occupy you.

New dreams, new friends and new goals all activate. You'll feel loved and satisfied by the end of January. Relationships are resolved. Act on money-making ideas.

Cold carving

George Greenwell was one of many culinary arts experts making an appearance at the Plymouth Ice Sculpture Spectacular this week, while the sixth annual event continues in Kellogg Park, Plymouth, until Jan. 17. Greenwell used his chainsaw to carve up creative ice carvings, such as the start of the Disney Ice Castle. In all, the project will take about 60 hours to complete, even though Greenwell has become a sort-of master at the carvings with 20 years experience. Kellogg Park is located off of Ann Arbor Trail, west of I-275, in downtown Plymouth. Several other events have been scheduled to coincide with the ice show. For more on the show, see the community calendar, page A-2.

Temperature is key for ice sculptures

By JOAN MAHY DYER
Belleville City Editor

It's either too warm or too cold for ice sculpting, according to the artists who turn blocks of ice into works of art.

If the temperature is too warm - anything over freezing - the ice will melt, according to Rich Henry. On the other hand, if the weather is too cold - as it has been during the past week - the ice becomes brittle and the chilly temperature makes it difficult and uncomfortable for the carvers to work outdoors.

"If I had my choice," Henry said, "It would be between 25 and 32 degrees here in the park."

Unfortunately, the temperature in Kellogg Park in downtown Plymouth was in the low teens with chilly winds blowing as Henry, Dave Allen and Dan Rebholz worked on the entry for Nadeau's Ice Sculpture. On Thursday afternoon the three men did the preliminary work to prepare the three 400-pound blocks of ice for carving. The carving which changed the towering tower of ice into the emblem of the Plymouth Ice Sculpture Spectacular - a unicorn inside a circle - took place on Friday.

The men estimated that it took eight full hours of work by the trio to complete the work.

This year, they are hoping for a top prize after earning one of the major prizes last year for their carving of Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs.

Rebholz, who is enrolled in a culinary arts program at Joliet Junior College in Illinois, noted that the competition is popular with student chefs because it "gives them a place to shine."

The ice sculpting competition is one of the few events that allow chefs to receive recognition for their work, he said. It also is an expression of art that many of the student participants and the professionals enjoy as a hobby, Rebholz said.

Among the local participants in the annual Plymouth Ice Sculpture Spectacular are Ford Motor Company of Westland, Livonia Churchill High School, Schoolcraft College, Plymouth Salem High School and Franklin Junior High School in Westland.

The ice sculptures will be on display through Jan. 17 - weather permitting - at Kellogg Park and on Main Street between Tennenman and West Ann Arbor Trail in downtown Plymouth.

Deadline extended for Person of Year

The nominating deadline for the 1987 Associated Newspapers Person of the Year event has been extended until 5 p.m. Friday, Jan. 22. This is a change from the Jan. 8 deadline previously set.

The Associated Newspapers is sponsoring the 1987 Person of the Year Award for people in the areas served by our six newspapers - The Wayne Eagle, The Westland Eagle, The Canton Eagle, The Inkster Ledger-Star, The Romulus Roman and The Belleville Enterprise.

One individual will be chosen as the 1987 Associated Newspapers Person of the Year, and five runners-up will also be honored, one from each of the five remaining newspaper coverage areas.

Nominations will be accepted at the main office of the newspaper, 35540 Michigan Ave., Wayne. Nominations can be informal in nature, as long as all forms submitted include the following information: nominee name, business or personal address, city, affiliation name (if applicable), phone number, reason this person should be the Person of the Year, name, address and phone number of person submitting form. Reason for nominating should include as many reasons as possible to demonstrate a person's influential powers and newsworthiness during 1987.

Winners will be highlighted in the Wednesday, Feb. 3 edition of the six Associated Newspapers. A profile of each winner will be included in the paper, and recognition to the winners will be given.

Nomination forms are also available at the newspaper offices.

Opinion

The American way . . .

It appears to be a clear-cut issue, and yet it has become obfuscated with emotion, pride and ego to a degree that could do serious harm to nearly all concerned.

We speak of the decision of the Romulus Board of Education to publish legal notices with a new publication in the city. The new product is distributed at no cost in a supermarket and on cigarette stands throughout the city. Several small markets also have the "The Little Paper" at their locations.

The decision of the members of the board was based, we are confident, on a sincere desire to help a new business in the city and in good faith. Unfortunately, it is clearly illegal.

The laws of the state of Michigan regarding the publication of required legal notices is very specific. The provisions for the privilege of publishing legal notices for a municipality or school district require publication at no less than weekly intervals for one year for a paid publication and at no less than weekly for two years for a free publication. There is a requirement for a bona-fide list of subscribers, 25 percent news and editorial content and dissemination of news and information in the English language. The paper to which members of the Romulus School Board awarded the minutes may comply under some of these provisions, but it has not been published weekly for at least one year. Therefore, it cannot be considered a qualifying newspaper under the law.

These regulations are very clear and have been upheld numerous times in courts and substantiated with several opinions from Michigan State Attorney General Frank Kelley. There is no question and the law is clear. But any position can be argued - and convincingly. The new publication argued convincingly that having a list of 40 or so paid subscribers is the only provision of the law which must be met.

School boards, unlike municipalities, are not required by law to publish minutes of the regular meetings. Therefore, as minutes are the only items published to date in the non-complying publication, it would appear there is no legal violation. But that could soon change.

The members of the board are seriously considering a bond issue for nearly $10 million, and notices regarding this action, information pertinent to the issue must be legally published. To fail to comply with the law in this matter could negate any action or decision of the board and render their action null and void.

Those are serious consequences, indeed.

To seek to help the underdog, the guy who needs some help, the new kid in town, is a human reaction and, frankly, quite admirable in many cases. It is, in fact, the usual American support of free enterprise and entrepreneurship. But to violate the law in offering such help is unconscionable.

And for a school district to choose to voluntarily publish non-required notices in a non-complying publication can only be considered a gift.

Do taxpayers sanction that gift? Are they willing to spend their money in an effort to support a private business which provides no educational benefit?

There is no question, in our minds, of the ethics and standards in place in this situation. We are guilty of allowing our professional pride in the newspaper we produce each week to color our thinking in the matter. Obviously, our standards of journalism and objectivity are far, far different from those employed at "The Little Paper." But, in the final analysis, there is always room for improvement, even with the best weekly newspaper in the state, and always room for competition.

But there is never room for even the appearance of wrongdoing by an elected official in any capacity. The members of the Romulus School Board have, with good intentions, come very, very close to the line in ignoring the recommendation of Superintendent of Schools Dr. William Bedell, a man employed to professionally operate and manage the district.

We would urge members of the board to listen carefully, very carefully, to the opinion of their attorneys in this situation and to weigh that opinion against the copies of the attorney general's ruling which we have provided them, along with copies of the law.

The motives of the board members in helping a struggling new business cannot be questioned. A refusal to recognize the law can.

Former councilman criticizes mayor

To The Editor:

After reading the current issue of the Romulus Roman, I have been debating whether or not to set a few facts straight regarding the article on the new appointment of the DPW Director or to sit quietly while the mayor conveniently confuses the issues again. I have decided, however, to sit down and inform the people of some interesting facts.

I hope the people start to get concerned of what is going on in this city. Because if what has gone on in the last two months of the new term is any indication, this city is in for some very troubled times ahead. The people better open their eyes fast!

The times that I agree with Councilman Jimmie Raspberry are few and far between, but he is right on the mark with his concern of conflict of interest in this case. How Mayor McNally can hire a labor negotiator, or even discuss such a proposition for the DPW director's job while negotiating the union workers' contract, is nothing short of lunacy. However, Mr. Raspberry did not go far enough in his criticism. I presume this is because he is unaware that city council adopted a policy for hiring and hiring qualifications on Aug. 11, 1986, when Raspberry was off the council. The mayor's action as well as response from city council are nothing short of comical, if not sickening.

As then a member of city council, in February 1984, Mayor McNally approached city council for approval on a $13,000 job classification study. And, after much discussion, it was finally approved in August. In various meetings and letters to council, McNally emphasized the need of the study in order to stabilize the city and bring hiring qualifications and wages into line, so Romulus could attract qualified people to fill positions.

It now appears that she deceived and lied to council. I am a firm believer that actions speak louder than words, and the actions of Mayor McNally on this issue prove different from her words.

Furthermore, on Aug. 11, 1986, with council resolution 86-405, city council formally adopted, at the mayor's recommendation, the job/wage classification study as city policy. So we ask ourselves, does her appointment of a labor negotiator fill the following qualifications as recommended by the mayor and adopted by city council? When those qualifications clearly state the following:

Education - Special or technical training equivalent to several years of college, with courses taken in engineering, business administration or related fields.

Experience - A minimum of seven years of progressively more responsible public works experience, preferably in a municipality involving extensive supervisory responsibilities or equivalent. Twelve months break-in period.

Necessary special requirements - Possession of a State of Michigan Class S-1 Water Distribution System Certification.

So, residents of Romulus, I ask you - Did McNally appoint such a qualified person to control the most important department within the city? Did McNally follow the recommendation she submitted to council for city policy? The very answer is "no."

And will city council demand that city policy be followed in the hiring of people by the policy they adopted Aug. 11, 1986? I doubt it. Now citizens of Romulus, think of the legal ramifications of having an unqualified DPW director.

Canton Christmas was a 'show place'

To The Editor:

The Canton Beautification Committee would like to thank the many Canton residents making our community a holiday showplace. It is a delight to drive through all of Canton and view the beautiful decorations.

We wish to extend our congratulations to winners of the Holiday Home Decorating Contest and to thank the judges. Their task was very difficult with so many beautiful entries.

We feel all of the contestants are winners.

I think it will get worse before it gets better. I don't think the job market is getting better.
I think the high-dollar jobs are coming to an end, and companies will pay less than more.

Vocational program nets new computers

The Van Buren School Board waived the bidding procedure in favor of purchasing IBM computers for the vocational education program.

The eight computers and printers will be purchased from IBM because staff members prefer the product due to the number of teaching aids and software available, school officials said.

The computers are to be purchased through the Wayne County Intermediate School District which receives a 35 percent discount. There is also a 50 percent reimbursement for the vocational education supplies from federal funds. The expected cost of the computers is $14,000.

Bids sought by school district

Bids are to be sought on three pieces of vocational education equipment for the Van Buren School District.

A diagnostic engine analyzer, wheel alignment equipment and a numerical computer lathe are to be purchased for the training of vocational education students, according to Bill Nagy, director of vocational education.

Funeral services set for residents

Funeral arrangements were handled for the following individuals by the David C. Brown Funeral Home in Belleville:

Sally Bentley, 86, formerly of Ypsilanti, who died on Dec. 11; John Lustrea, 94, of Canton, who died on Dec. 13; Agnes Taylor, 83, of Belleville, who died on Dec. 14, and Doris Januszyk, 61, of Belleville who died on Dec. 19.

Big at heart

Brownie members from Haggerty Troop 371, Belleville, collected canned goods to help the needy during the holiday season this year. Troop leaders Carrie Dalton and Cindy Rich reported that the idea for the community service project was inspired by the Belleville Goodfellows Food Drive.

A Super 8 Motel is now under construction in Romulus and is expected to open in April, according to corporate officials.

The motel, the seventh to open in the state, will be located at 9863 Middlebelt Road, Romulus. Similar motels are also under construction in Taylor and Clawson.

The Romulus Super 8 Motel will open with a single room rate of $36.88 per night. Rooms feature color televisions, direct-dial telephones and tub/

Super 8 officials said that approximately 15 local workers will be hired to join the staff at the motel.

Super 8 Motels, Inc. is a national firm, owning properties for motels in all 50 states. Currently, there are 488 motels open in 45 states and three Canadian provinces, with another 36 properties under construction. The chain opened a new property on the average of every 88 hours in 1987 and plans to open a 500th motel in early 1988.

Added features include a guest elevator and facilities for handicapped guests.

Bulldogs

sparked the Bulldogs with six points in the first period and 11 in the second that enabled the hosts to create a 10-point (27-17) bulge at halftime.

Lorenzo Terrell kept the Vikings in the game in the early stages with his 11 points in the first two periods. An injury kept him from playing that role in the second half.

It was Marshall, with his deadly 6 of 6 at the free throw line and his eight field goals - one a three-pointer - that rattled the Vikings' defenses.

And it was Robichaud's superiority on the boards that led to Inkster's eventual demise.

"This is the first game that I felt we were outmanned on the boards," Thompson said. "They did the job on us and deserved to win, no doubt about that."

Inkster returned to the hardwood last night, clashing with scored from the field 34-21, Huron's long range artillerymen were on target for eight three-pointers, a school record. The Chiefs also canned 12 of 15 chances from the free throw line as compared to Grosse Ile's 7 of 17 performance.

Mike Harrison and Andy Jackson hit in double figures for the Chiefs, accounting for 17 and 16 points, while Joe Skasigir joined Klein in the two figure column for the winners. He had 10.

After 6th loss
Romulus is trying to pick up the pieces

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

After a disastrous week, Romulus cagers will return to the blackboard to see if they can correct some of their mistakes that have led to one of their worst starts in recent memory.

"There is a lot of pressure on them," said Romulus Coach Dan Henry after the Eagles dropped a 56-48 decision Friday to South Central Conference rival, Ann Arbor Huron. The loss left the Eagles with a 1-6 overall record and without a victory in three starts in their new league.

"What has happened is that our kids are afraid of making mistakes, and that leads to conservative play. We don't have any games this week, so it'll give us an opportunity to reassess what we are doing, and hopefully pick up the pieces. What we need most at this time is a victory."

The Eagles have an opportunity on Jan. 19 to snap a six-game losing streak when they will host Taylor Truman. Truman has had its share of problems this year.

A low-scoring game until the closing minutes of the first half, the Eagles never mustered enough scoring power to overcome small deficits against Huron. They trailed 11-10 at the end of the first period and, until Steve Officer and Carlos Williams took command for Huron, late in the initial half, it was anyone's game.

Huron protected its nine-point halftime cushion (29-20) not because of its superiority, but due to the Eagles' ineptness in missing easy shots. It was left to Brent Bonam to bring some life into the Eagle ranks. Bonam erupted for 16 of his game-high 20 points in the last eight minutes, but they were not enough to make up the difference of Huron's balanced scoring attack. Officer and Williams each collected 18 points for the winners, while Bonam was the only Romulus player to reach two figures.

Abney finished with a game high 23 points as he connected for 11 field goals - one of those a three-pointer. Teammates Andre Hardy and James Poole were close behind with 22 and 21 points, respectively, while Michael Lee accounted for 10.

David Shelby paced the Red Raiders' scoring assault with 22 points.

Richendollar lifts Belleville to key victory

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Until last week, Anthony Richendollar was a "one sport athlete".

A 235-pound, 6-0 Belleville High junior, Richendollar had been concentrating on football, a sport which he earned a varsity letter last season as a tackle on offense. This season he may just switch to play defensive tackle.

And last week Richendollar decided to take a shot at wrestling.

Coach Gerald Malacek is happy the young Richendollar had a change of heart.

Trailing 22-21 going into the heavyweight class against arch rival, Monroe, Richendollar made his first varsity appearance of the season when he stepped on to the mats to face Charlie Webb.

Webb had Richendollar under control until the final minutes when the Belleville grappler reversed a 1-0 decision against him to a victory via a 4:51 fall. The victory and the six points lifted the Tigers to a 27-22 triumph over the pre-season Wolverine 'A' Conference title favorites.

"There was a lot of pressure on Richendollar," Malacek explained. "It was their (Monroe's) Parent's Night and his (Richendollar's) first varsity and first match of the year. He was the difference in this meet."

With the exception of the 1985 meet when the Tigers buried Monroe 53-11, the two clubs have had close meets, decided by less than five points over the past five years.

Malacek had earlier stated that if his team could win their next three, the Tigers would be in great shape of winning their fourth title in five years. They'll face Southgate Anderson on Thursday and on the following Thursday will run up against Wayne Memorial. They are presently sporting a 3-0 conference and a 3-1 overall record.

Belleville picked up four medals at the 17-team Jackson County Western Invitational over the weekend. The host, Western, captured the team trophy.

Joe Yuhas came within a victory of a gold medal but Albion's Tom Watts forced the Belleville 132-pounder to settle for a silver by defeating him in the finals 12-2.

Tim Clearwood took a third place at 126 when he won the consolation round on a 9-2 decision over Ted Burnstein of Columbia Central and Mike Braswell came away with a fourth-place medal at the 145-pound class after losing to Saline's Melinszka, 5-1. Belleville's Jeff Komaromi also was fourth, losing on a fall to Central's John Miller.

The Tigers resume their chase for the conference title Thursday night when Southgate Anderson comes to town. Here are the results of the Belleville, Monroe meet:

BELLEVILLE 27, MONROE 21
98 - Derek Reed (B) dec. Mike Kopp (M), 9-3
105 - Ish Amaya (M) dec. Chris Farmer (B), 12-4
112 - Shane Foland (M) dec. Rob Gray (B), 10-6
119 - Sean LaBelle (M) dec. Blaine Fiedler (B), 4-3
126 - Tim Clearwood (B) dec. Kevin LaBelle (B), 4-0
132 - Jerry Thomas (M) dec. Joe Yuhas (B), 12-8
138 - Rob Lucas (B) pinned Bill Fiedler (M), 5:35
145 - Mike Braswell (B) dec. John West (M), 10-9
155 - Joe Keeton (B) dec. Dan Bates (M), 4-1
167 - Sam Wener (M) dec. Darryl Lamie (B), 5-2
185 - Jeff Komaromi (B) dec. Todd Kuehn (M), 5-2
198 - Dick Watkins (M) pinned Gary Smallwood (B), 1:04
HWY - Anthony Richendollar (B) pinned Charlie Webb (M), 4:51

Good year doesn't last

Trojans awesome

There were no last minute heroics Friday night as Wolverine 'A' Conference rival Monroe burst Belleville's new year bubble.

Belleville, which won last Tuesday on a last shot by Maurice Brantley that lifted Coach Michael Garland and the Tigers to a 53-51 victory over non-conference rival Westland John Glenn, was overpowered Friday night by a fast-moving, sharpshooting Monroe quintet, 75-55.

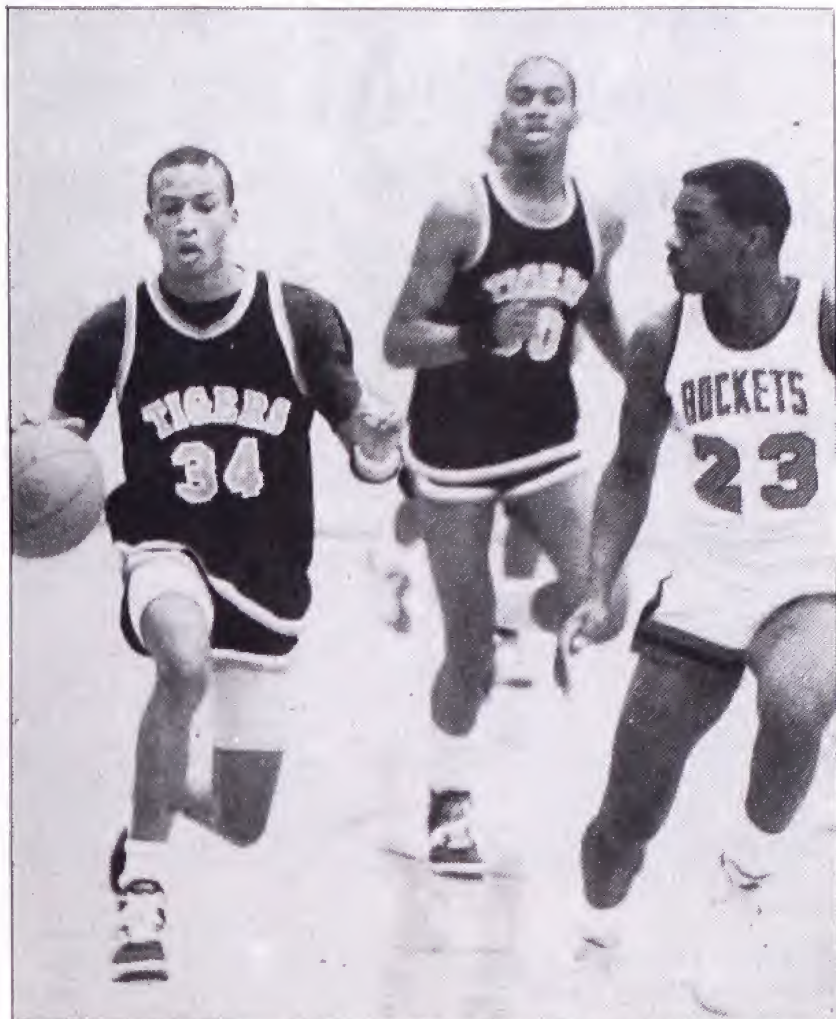

"We just broke down against their pressure," Garland said. "And we penalized ourselves with turnovers. Although my book says we had 18, I would say that it was more like 25." The Trojans left little for speculation as guard Willie Jones rattled the nets for 23 points and teammate Tim Taft added 14 in the rout.

The loss left the Tigers with 1-2 won-lost conference but a 4-3 overall record.

Anthony Bellinger was the best of the Tiger shooters as he pumped in 17 points. Brantley accounted for 15.

It won't be any easier for Garland's cagers on Friday night when they travel to Wayne Memorial to face the defending and undefeated champ. Wayne is sporting an impeccable 3-0 conference and a 5-1 overall record. The Zeb-ras' lone loss this season was to Catholic Central.

"Wayne's record speaks for itself," said Garland. "They are undefeated in the league, and if you're going to do any-

Westland John Glenn's Marcus Lowe is keeping his eyes glued on Belleville's Chico Crout (34) as he heads downcourt. Cico and the Tigers managed to pull out a cliffhanging 53-51 victory over their non conference rivals and will play Wayne Memorial, the defending conference champ, at Wayne Friday night. It doesn't look too good for the Tigers (1-2, 4-3). Wayne is undefeated in the league and is sporting a 5-1 overall record. ANP photo by Ann Grimes/ staff photographer thing in this league you have to beat Wayne."

Brantley, who had 13 points against the Westlanders, broke a 51-all deadlock with his precision shooting and "last shot" that he released from the top of the key.

The Tigers trailed 13-9 in the seesaw affair, and managed to tie it at 25-all after two periods. The Westlanders came back to take a four-point 37-33 lead for three quarters and the duel went right down to the wire and was settled with Brantley's jumper.

Brantley finished with 13, but the individual scoring honors went to teammate, center Al Tilman, who bagged 18.

Robichaud seeks meets

With neighboring Inkster and Willow Run without swim teams this season, there is a huge gap in Robichaud's swimming schedule that Coach Jim Hadley would like to fill as soon as possible.

"We are looking for teams preferably in the area which also may have an open date they would like to fill," Hadley said after his Bulldogs turned back Dearborn Heights Crestwood 98-64 in a non-conference meet. "Because two of our league rivals are not fielding teams it leaves us without any scheduled competition until Jan. 21."

The long layoff could create some problems for the Bulldogs who remain in the chase for the Suburban Athletic Conference title despite a loss earlier in the season to defending champ, Willow Run.

Hadley has found at least one opponent, Annapolis, to fill his depleted schedule. The two city rivals have agreed to meet at 4 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 19 in the Bulldog pool.

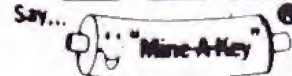

In the meantime, area coaches are asked to contact Hadley at 565-8850 if they have an open date in the next two weeks.

Robichaud made the most of six first places and their depth to beat a respected foe of the Tri-River Conference, Crestwood. Ken Wood provided the winners with two of those six victories. Wood and Tony Lario placed 1-2 on the diving boards with the winner accumulating 129.6 points. Lario compiled 11.4 points for his second place.

Wood also won the 100-yard butterfly competition with a 1:07.2 effort.

Strength of dollar puts Fed 'on alert'

The Federal Reserve Board finds itself in a unique, unprepared position this week. The sudden strength in the dollar last week was a welcome, hard-to-explain surprise. It may have escaped most "American" observers that the Japanese political leaders also have lobby groups. As they agreed to let the value of the dollar decline, it was causing exporter problems — to the point that the alternative would be reduced employment.

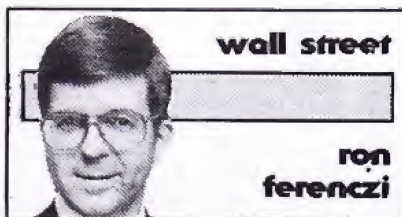

Everybody protects their own.

Without any prodding from the U.S. Fed, Japan moved to increase the value of the dollar. Now, the fun begins! The Japanese want the dollar value higher, the U.S. would like to see it lower.

For this week, interest rates will ease, allowing bond prices to move higher. Gold and silver prices will continue to be under selling pressure, as large reserves come to the market to generate cash.

The short-term traders will open the session continuing to furnish inventory, putting additional downward pressure on stock prices. The market ability to absorb this inventory will cause traders by mid-session to move to the buy side.

Intermediate — and long-term traders will stand aside early in the session, but will be willing buyers as we close out the session.

Without any prodding from the U.S. Fed, Japan move increase the value of the dollar. Now, the fun begins!
— Ron Ferenczi

The market will open under the influence of the decline of last week. However, the one-day decline of 141 points and 27-point decline for the week does not seem to have weakened overall market strength. It also may not be a signal for further large declines.

The 141-point decline may prove to be an exciting, heart-stopping non-event. The market will regain solid footing as we move through this session and close developing an upward bias.

PJ's Distillery has new look, new offerings

By TERRY JACOBY
ANP Staff Writer

Mike Terzano has a serious problem on his hands.

Terzano and partner Al Acker are the owners of PJ's Distillery, located on Wayne and Ecorse roads, Romulus. They have spent a great amount of time and money on a "complete renovation" of the building. They have inexpensive drinks and food — and outstanding entertainment.

The problem? "No one knows we're here," said Terzano, who opened the doors of the business Dec. 21. "We are the best-kept secret in Romulus. I would call us the Cinderella bar of Romulus. We have a great night spot, but people don't know we're here."

Terzano and Acker have big plans for the future and appear to be well on their way to success. An adjacent baseball field and banquet hall are just some of the plans of these entrepreneurs.

"We have plans for a banquet room which would be built next to the bar and a baseball diamond adjacent to the building," said Terzano. "We will also finish repaving the parking lot."

Terzano and Acker, who also own a small neighborhood bar in Detroit, have concentrated heavily on the inside of PJ's Distillery, the former Krammer's Corner Bar.

"We totally regutted the interior of the building and rebuilt the inside," said Terzano, who is a resident of Redford

Township. "We have new walls, heating, carpeting. We also have a new dance floor and a sound system that is second to none in the area."

The menu will also be "rebuilt," Terzano said.

"Right now we have a limited menu," said Terzano. "But we do have a half-pound burger for only $1.25, and we are planning on expanding the menu soon to possibly include a fish night and a spaghetti night."

As for entertainment, PJ's will feature music by "Horizons," a contemporary rock band, on the weekends and a disc jockey during the week. Terzano also has plans for a comedy night in the near future.

The two owners chose the Romulus site, they said, because of the location and what they feel is a growing community.

"We really liked the location and the size of the building," said Terzano. "We also feel that Romulus has great potential, and we expect the Romulus area to grow the same way places like Plymouth and Canton have grown."

PJ's Distillery is open each day, 9:30 to 2:30 a.m.

Business is rolling

Both the employees and customers at the new Fantastic Sam's hair salon — located at 5752 Merriman Road, at Van Born, Wayne — are rolling these days, after one customer walked away with a new 10-speed bike. The bike was the grand prize in a drawing staged to celebrate the Nov. 2 grand opening of the business. The Wayne hair salon is owned by Glen Shaw, who also owns four other Fantastic Sam's in Westland, Plymouth and Southfield. Here, store employees present the bike to winner Damon Richel, 8 (on the bike), his mother, Tonya (front row, from left), brother Jared, 3, and sister Stephanie, 5. Psychic 'predicts' 1988 business scene

By JANICE FRITZ
ANP Staff Writer

The business scenario will resemble a roller coaster in 1988, if Rosemary Near, a local psychic, is able to accurately gaze into her crystal ball.

Near, a psychic-astrologer who hosts a radio talk show on WCAR 1090 AM in Garden City, makes forecasts by charting the path of the stars and interpreting the movements of them. Also a columnist for the Associated Newspapers, Near has compiled a list of her business predictions for the new year.

January

People are in a humanity and charity frame of mind. There will be a focus on fundraising and helping others in some way.

February

Loans, financing and investments are the key areas right now. Interest rates, taxes and changes are all being activated right now.

March

Take no risks, go out on no limbs. Pull back to a safe zone, and wait out the storms. The cash flow right now is going to be very insecure, so watch every penny you spend.

April

People are going to be called upon to unite for causes. Through catastrophic circumstances, people will be joined together.

May

A tremendous power-struggle energy is rampant throughout the business world, and we will see this from national levels down to personal levels. Businesses will do well if they sell power "images" through their products or services. Our lifestyles may improve as a result.

June

Everything becomes restricted in June. Money, attitudes, freedoms and information. Go with this energy, and work with it instead of fighting the energy. Help to restrict, and you'll prosper. This is a power buildup time.

July

There will be a "weeding out" process early in the month, cutting away the unnecessary. This is very prosperous time for weight-loss businesses, budget services, discount stores, etc.

One area which won't be cutting back is nurturing others in dire need of help.

August

People will rebel against too much restriction this month. "Fun" will be the product which will be easy to sell to everyone, especially at the beginning of the month. Also, romance and love will be in the limelight, even in the business world.

People will need lots of attention.

September

The law, the government, power figures are all in the news. Health and preventive goods are the strong areas in business this month. Expect a breakthrough in medicine at this time.

October

Independence and partnerships are the focal points this month. People are going to be very ambitious this month and will want to appear as professional as possible.

Anything you can do to help them will sell very well. Romance and weddings will be big business at this time, too.

November

Investigation, secrets, research and facts are the energy focus in November. By the end of this month, information will be for sale. This is going to be very beneficial for writers, reporters, detectives, researchers and also for bookstore sales. Information services and media will prosper this year.

December

The truest holiday values are strong. Helping others, fundraising, cheering those who need encouragement. Greeting cards, small gifts, posters and the like will be popular. Also, anything that nets money for a good cause will prosper.

About the Auto Show

When: The Auto Show will be staged Jan. 16 to 24. Hours are noon to 10:30 p.m. weekends and 2 to 10:30 p.m. weekdays.

Where: The Auto Show will be staged at Cobo Hall, 1 Washington Blvd., Detroit.

Cost: Tickets are priced $4.75 for adults. Children younger than 12 and senior citizens are admitted free of charge.

Who goes to the show: A 1986 and 1987 study by John Gilmore and Associates indicated that, in 1987, 55 percent of the show-goers were planning to purchase a car. In 1986, that figure was 62 percent.

Parking: In addition to parking in the Cobo Hall and Joe Louis Arena lots, five city parking lots have been established near People Mover stations. Auto Show goers can park for $1 weekdays after 5 p.m. and anytime Saturday and Sunday. Those parking in the $1 lots will need to ride the People Mover to Cobo Hall. Fare on the people Mover is 50 cents, one way. The $1 lots are located near the Greektown People Mover station, the Cadillac Square station, the Broadway station, Grand Circus station and Times Square station.

Charity Preview: Tickets for the 1988 Detroit Auto Show Charity Preview are now on sale from any of four children's charities that sponsor the traditional, black-tie event. The Charity Preview will be from 7 to 9 p.m. Friday, Jan. 15. Those attending get a first look at the show. Tickets are $50 per person and can be ordered from: the Boys and Girls Clubs of Southeastern Michigan, 894-8500; the Easter Seal Society, Wayne County, 722-3065; Assistance League to the Northeast Guidance Center, 824-8000; and The Children's Center, 831-5535.

Attendance: Attendance at the Auto Show during the last seven years has been on a roller-coaster. Total attendance figures for those years were: 378,151 in 1981; 320,367 in 1982; 454,667 in 1983; 467,255 in 1984; 409,102 in 1985; 471,977 in 1986; and 450,301 in 1987.

History: The Detroit Auto Show dates to 1899, when William E. Metzger, of Detroit, a wholesale bicycle merchant, scheduled such a show at the Light Guard Armory. (He had staged a similar show in 1895 in London, England.) Even though the crowd numbered a mere 200, the promoters - including the Fletcher Hardware Co. - were so elated with their success that they staged a party for the exhibitors, which Metzger later claimed absorbed nearly all of the profits.

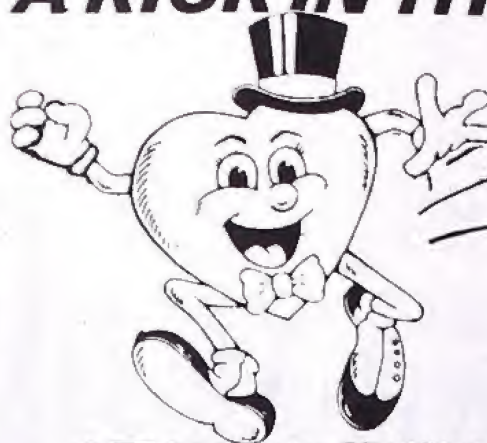

The show was later continued by the large Detroit auto manufacturers, staged at the state fair grounds and the Detroit Artillery Armory. In 1965, the 50th anniversary of the event, the Detroit Auto Show was moved to Cobo Hall, where it has remained.

THE 1988 SHOW is under the direction of Ken Meade, owner of Pointe Dodge, Detroit. In 1971, when opening the dealership, Meade became the youngest Dodge dealer in the country. Having been named as the 1988 Detroit Auto Show Chairman, Meade said he looks forward to the show this year with enthusiasm.

"I view it as a terrific challenge. The show has 72 years of tradition behind it, and we strive to improve it each year," Meade said.

Meade, 44, owns Pointe Dodge, Pointe Chrysler/Plymouth, Pointe Isuzu, Pointe Jeep Eagle and Meade Leasing. The Meade Group also owns Commercial Lighting Specialists, Inc., a company involved in the marketing of new concepts in energy saving lighting for commercial use.

Take It From Me.

"My family is my career, my job is supplemental!"

Once you have a family, your ideas about work sometimes change. Mine did. For example, I now consider working part-time and close to home to be of prime importance. So when I decided to get back to work, I needed flexibility.

KFC understands this. And they helped me make the most of it. I work part-time as a customer service team member, but food prep positions are also available. I'm supplementing the family income on a schedule tailored to my needs. Now that's a job I can live with!

If you're looking for a flexible, realistic way to combine family and job, I've got just the place for you. For consideration, pickup applications at The Kentucky Fried Chicken, 2339 Wayne Rd., Westland, or call 482-7256.
